Executive Summary

The data within this report reflect cases with incident dates from January 1, 2009 through December 31, 2009. This report provides an overview of cases resulting from alleged violations of the University of Georgia (UGA) Code of Conduct. While the majority of cases were managed by the Office of Judicial Programs (OJP), housing judicial data is included.

The Office of Judicial Programs received reports of alleged violations from a variety of University and local sources. The majority of overall cases originated from Housing, Athens Clarke County Police, and University Computer Services (EITS/InfoSec), equaling to a combined 1,144 cases sent to OJP. A total of 213 reports originated from other sources including the University of Georgia Police Department and students. OJP resolved 861 cases as compared to 356 resolved through the Department of Housing.

The majority of cases were resolved through the informal resolution process. Students elected to resolve cases through formal hearings at a rate of 5% (n=61). University hearing officers resolved 79% (n=968) of the cases. When students accepted responsibility or were found to be responsible through a formal hearing, a variety of educational sanctions were utilized. Probation (n=628) with the University was the most common sanction, followed closely by mandated alcohol education classes (n=536) through the Fontaine Center or a court-approved facility and reprimands (n=411). During the 2009 school year, 29 students were suspended from the University and one student was expelled. There were a total of eight appeals for the 2009 school year.

Freshmen make up the majority of students allegedly violating the Code of Conduct regulations related to alcohol and drugs. An analysis of these alleged violations by classification shows 70% (n=646) of the total number of students were freshmen. Males (n=784) were more likely than females (n=492) to face allegations of violations.

The Office of Judicial Programs notified the parents or guardians of 455 students under the age of 21 that their students were found to have violated Code of Conduct policies on the use or possession of alcohol or other drugs. There were a total of 70 repeat offenders during the 2009 calendar year, with males (n=47) more likely to come through the process again than females (n=23).

This year graduate and professional students were added to the report. Graduate students accounted for 2% (n=25) of the actual number of cases OJP managed and professional students also accounted for 2% (n=29) of the cases.

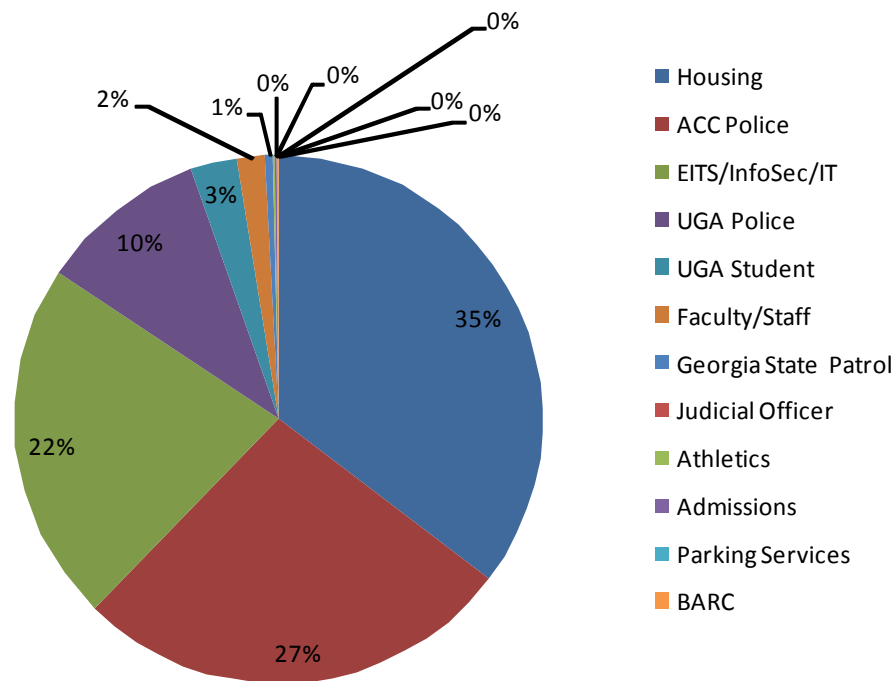

2009 Case Origination

“Incidents of alleged violations of conduct regulations are reported to the Associate Dean of Students for Judicial Programs, Office of Judicial Programs (500 Memorial Hall) or his/her designee. Individuals or groups filing a report should do so in writing and the report should be submitted as soon as possible after the alleged violation. Reports not submitted in writing will be independently verified prior to beginning a judicial investigation. For individuals filing a report, a meeting can be arranged with a staff member in the Office of Judicial Programs to discuss the judicial process. For incidents to be reported in University Housing, individuals or groups filing a report may contact the Area Office where the incident took place” (The University of Georgia Code of Conduct, 2008).

The Office of Judicial Programs receives reports of alleged violations of conduct regulations from a variety of sources. Unless suspension or expulsion are possible sanctions, incidents reported by University Housing personnel are often heard by University Housing staff. Housing and Athens Clarke County Police provided the majority of reports to the Office of Judicial Programs for the 2009 year.

2009 Origin of Student Conduct Cases

2009 Hearing Officer

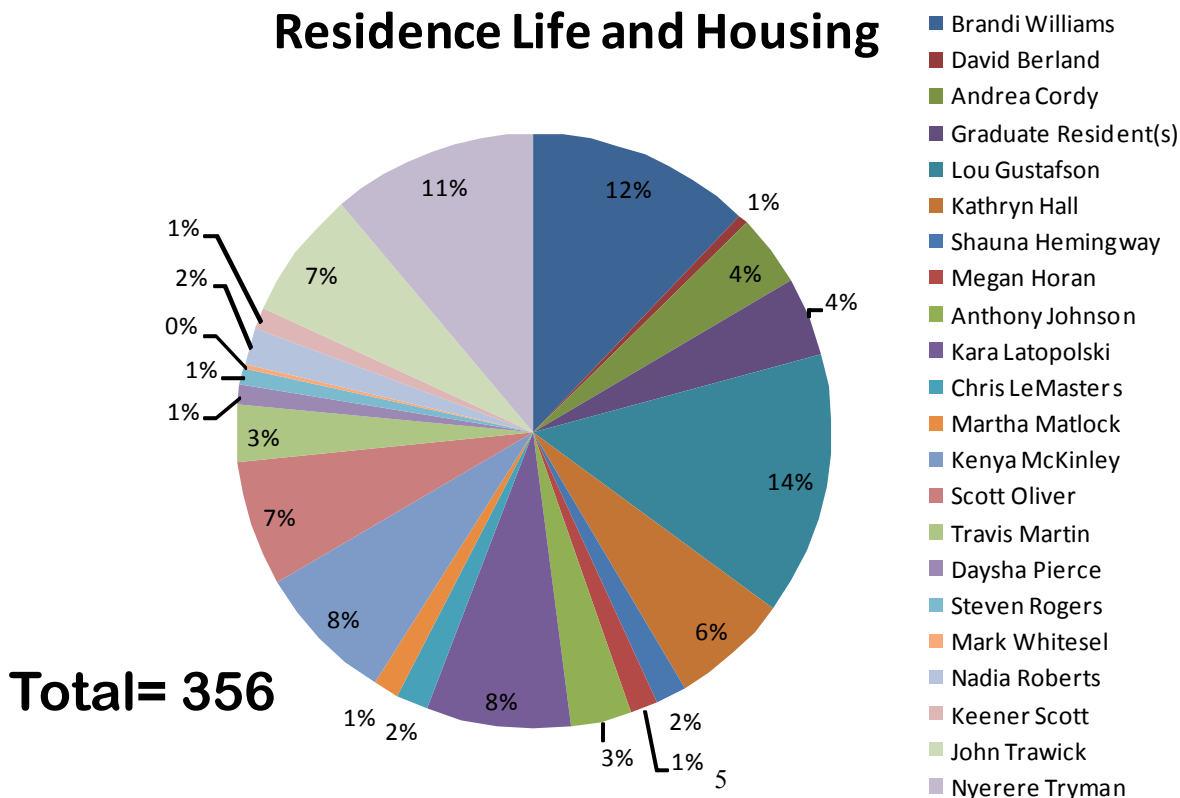

“After receiving a report, a staff member will be assigned to investigate the circumstances of the incident and determine what conduct regulations, if any, are alleged to have been violated” (The University of Georgia Code of Conduct, 2008).

“During the meeting the staff member will determine which, if any, of the alleged charges are to be resolved through the judicial process and advise the student or organization about the options for resolving judicial charges” (The University of Georgia Code of Conduct, 2008).

2009 Analysis of Resolution

“If the student or organization agrees that the violation(s) of the conduct regulations cited occurred, he/she (it) may decide to have the case resolved through the informal process. A student or organization always has the right to refuse the informal process and proceed with a formal hearing. Final resolution of the informal process must meet the following criteria: (1) the staff member handling the case and the student or student organization agree that informal resolution is a reasonable option given the circumstances; (2) the student or organization must accept responsibility for the violation(s) of the specified conduct regulation(s); (3) the student or organization must agree with the sanctions resulting from the violation(s); (4) if applicable, the victim should agree with the sanctions issued for the violation(s) and may propose sanctions that are reasonable and in accordance with the Code of Conduct. Cases that do not meet all four criteria for the informal resolution will be referred to formal resolution (hearing)” (The University of Georgia Code of Conduct, 2008).

Data demonstrates a much higher number of overall violations and actual students for freshmen at the University. Data was not kept for graduate and professional students in spring 2009, only the summer and fall semesters.

2009 Appeals

“The student or organization may appeal the decision from a formal judicial hearing. Appeal information will be included with the decision issued to a student or organization. Appeal forms are available in the Office of Judicial Programs. All appeals must be in writing and submitted to the Office of Judicial Programs within five (5) University business days of receipt of the decision. The purpose of appeal procedures is to provide the student with the opportunity to bring forward questions regarding substantive or procedural errors that occurred during the process. The appeal process is not intended to grant a new hearing at a higher level. Dissatisfaction with a decision is not grounds for an appeal” (The University of Georgia Code of Conduct, 2008).
